

How speak English fluently? 8 tips

Each person can dream about anything. For example, to find the love of your life, start a family, get a good job, to build a big house and others. The desire to converse freely in any language is an accomplishment of many people. And this dream is justified. After having learned, for example, the English language and began to talk freely on it, one gets the opportunity to communicate with a huge mass of people around the globe. Why do so many people agonize over the question of how to speak English fluently? What challenges a person faces when learning a language? How hard can it be? Will try to illuminate the answers to these questions in our article.

The most common problem in free communication in the language is the problem of the language barrier caused by lack of practice. For example, a person is able to understand foreign speech, to make a suggestions, to translate texts, but as soon as you reach the moment of "truth", then some kind of switch in the head switches its position to the "off" position. I mean, he sort of understands everything, but can not speak. Each person is different, and the case given above, does not summarize all people with the same brush. However, edupeet.com if you are this type of person, then our advice that we will give below, just designed for you.

Tips on how to start talking in English:

1. Regularly enrich your vocabulary of English words. Remember the words correctly, better to use a dictionary that lists synonyms and antonyms of the original words. So you have associations, not individual words.
2. In the practice of linguistic communication vocabulary is traditionally divided into active and passive. Active vocabulary is a set of words that a person uses when communicating in writing, and the passive consists of words that you read or heard from various sources of information, but they are entrenched in the subconscious, not manifesting itself in consciousness. Try to turn passive vocabulary into an active, penetrating look at the meaning of what he heard or read.
3. Learn ready-made phrases. This advice is not some innovation, it has long been known, but we could not ignore it due to its high efficiency. Phrases, cliches will help to break the language barrier and beautiful to start a conversation.
4. Improve your pronunciation. You must achieve a perfect pronunciation of all the sounds and their combinations. This can only be done directly in practice. Speak more, listen to foreign radio, watch movies in English etc.
5. Regularly listen to educational podcasts. You can listen to them, for example, when you walk, go to work, school or just at home in a relaxed atmosphere.
6. For fans of foreign songs, this method will satisfy. Advise you to see the translation of each foreign song that you have in the playlist. Read the original text aloud, and then try to sing a song in a foreign language. We also recommend you to watch clips, they follow the articulation artist.
7. Record your voice every time something you read in a foreign language. So you can identify defects in your speech and time to correct them. Make first entry and after 2-3 months compare again made an audio recording with "the first pancake". You'll see how striking the difference in the result. This is motivating, isn't it?
8. Less theory, more practice. That says it all. If you're too deep into theory, so freely to speak English you do not start, because without practice is impossible. When possible, we encourage you to find a language partner-native speaker and start to chat with him.
